C ENTLEMEN, --I take the opportunity to-day of drawing your attention to a pure example of waxy or amyloid disease of the kidneys, from which those of you who attended my wards last summer have already learned some useful lessons. The case was that of the patient A. D. , who came in on 27th May, 1886, suffering from polyuria. His urine was of very low specific gravity--as a rule, about 1005, or even lower, and at the time of his admission was free from albumen. The case looked at first like one of diabetes insipidus, but very shortly after his admission it was found that, though cold nitric acid continued to give no perceptible reaction, some of the more delicate tests did give a slight opacity indicative of albumen. After a time a very faint cloud was produced by nitric acid, and gradually, but steadily, the albumen increased. Here, then, we had polyuria with slight albuminuria, and the case was on that account suspected to be one of waxy kidney. But there was no apparent cause of waxy disease, and in the absence of that kind of evidence, there was some hesitation about the diagnosis. True, he had had chronic suppuration once, of which he still showed tokens in old cicatrices on the right side of the chest, but this suppuration had entirely ceased eight...
