Brand New Book  Print on Demand .I met Don, when I followed in the footsteps of my great grandmother, grandmother and mother, who had taught in rural schools out west for three generations in the late 1800 s to the beginning of the 1900 s and into two decades beyond. My teaching contract was in the school district of the Brandeis Ranch, where I was to board-the biggest ranch in western Nebraska, steeped in history. This is the story of our short twenty-five years of life together that was packed to the hilt with love and well-being, yet not without hardship-raising our five children in God s country. We lived on some of the most prestigious ranches in the day, when business deals were done on a handshake. I was queen of the manor running the office, home and cookhouse in the center of- a sort of metropolis , from where all things for all people working for our Malmberg Cattle Company depended on for their paycheck and existence. Don s father was the boss and in the midst of cowboys, hired girls, schoolteachers,...
