An excerpt from the beginning of the book: ON the insignia of authority of all peoples, be it scepter, staff of office, rod of empire or the simple rod of the primitive medicine man, there have been decorations, jewels, gold and silver. The ermine and the purple have been adorned with rare gems; the robes of state have nestled against the sheen of gold lace; the seal and the talisman have borne the embellishment of glinting jewels equally with the coronet, crown and diadem. The simple fillet of the peasant woman boasts its decorative twist; the snood of the maiden, the emblem of purity, is not guiltless of its dainty ornamentation; and even genius and bravery do not reject the laurel. From the crown of the monarch, where precious stones rival one another in glory, to the trinket of the untrained savage the same theme embraces all human kind in the pomp and array of its vanities and vainglory. Be it tinsel or gem, the rainbowed glint of the diamond, the sanguine glow of the ruby, the stillness of the sapphire, the restfulness of the emerald, or the peaceful pearl, even these have caught the rhythmic vibration of nature and decked themselves with her gala colors to perpetuate the annals of kingdom and crown. Primitive man had his conception of the beautiful in his rude way and his suggestions of decoration always. He may not have caught the glowing gem, but the threaded shell and varicolored pebble have answered his desire to decorate and beautify. Silver chaste and steadfast has ever served the will of courtly and gracious peoples. With exquisite effect it illustrated ancient art. The shah...
