Excerpt: .were successful, many did not get the opportunity to go to school, and still many others having received the education gave their lives to the work of educating a primitive but eager race: their monuments may be seen in the progress of the Negro race as clearly as Washington s monument may be seen at Tuskegee, Alahama. many good and educated Northern men and women went South at the close of the War and devoted their lives to the education of the Negro; but many of these Northern people were misunderstood, (7) and consequently their work greatly hampered by public sentiment being against them. Nany Negroes of the day were wise enough to see that these white people would have to work under disadvantages, and, also, that even the number of these Northerners willing to consecrate their lives to the task would always be...
